Why are we taught? Why do we teach? What are we seeking, and why? The bare facts. Will I, me, myself be strong enough to accept these unanswerable probings? Is my ego fortified to understand the hate involved in love? The love involved in hate? The indifference involved in not caring?

The tingle of a hand!!! The sweat on a brow!!! The tears of a smile!!!

These, these unspeakable rites of existence. Not unspeakable because we dare not utter an attack on them, but because the rites hold in themselves the answer and the question, the right and the wrong. And whatever the outcome there will be no sad feelings, for the glance of a friend, the smile of an enemy, the touch of a lover and the silence heard in the music of life will be more than adequate to give us reason to keep fighting, to keep teaching and to keep searching . . .

Alex,
This has really been a short year. It was great having you in Spanish. That class is one of a million. Maybe you'll be in my class next year. Have a nice summer and I'm sure I'll see you down at the beach.

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer.
Let him step to the music which he hears,
however measured or far away.
Henry David Thoreau

Doesn't this seem like a good place to sign off? It's been suffering through English to get together for a year; I certainly hope next year has more to offer. Alex, I hope we do get a lot done for our class. See you next year!

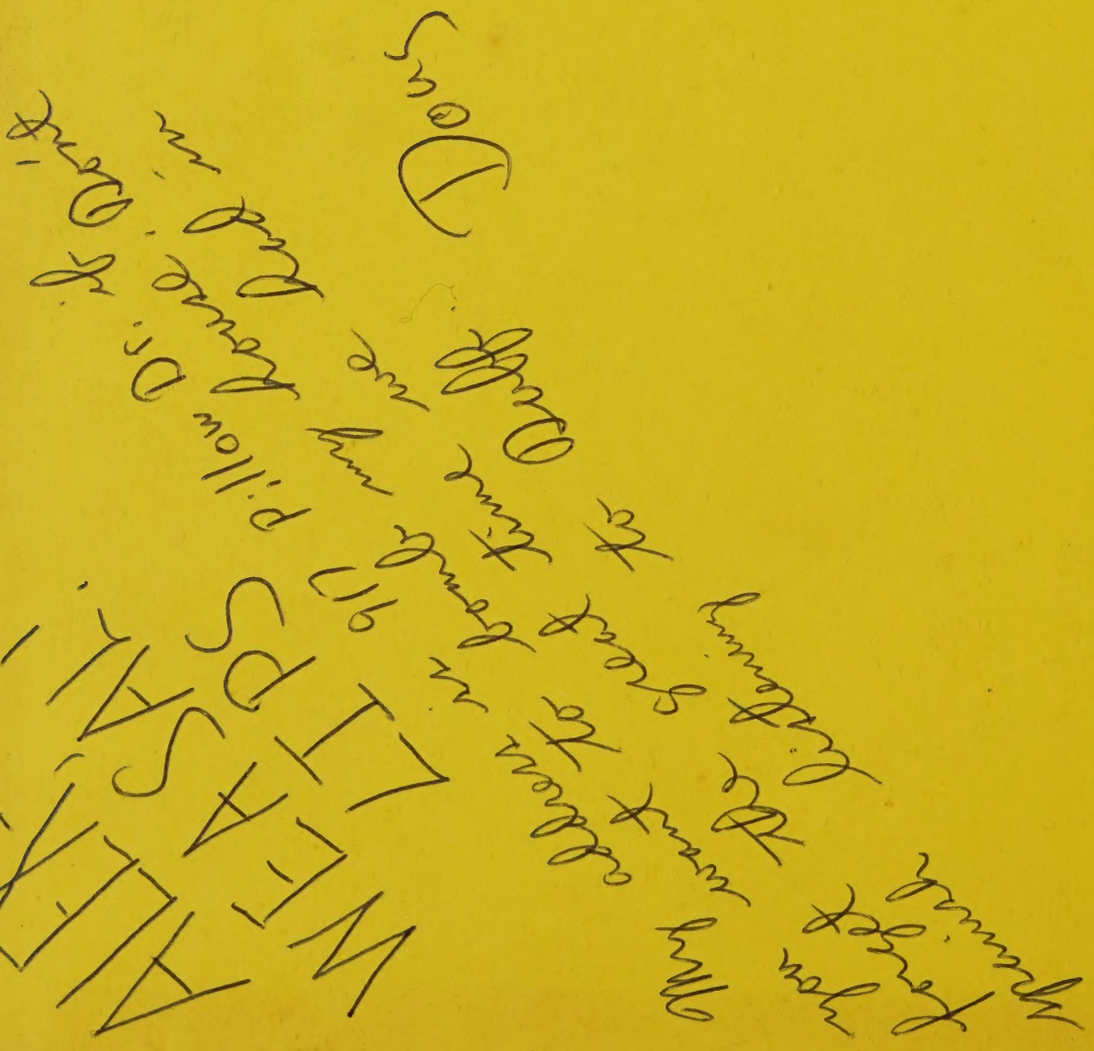
Alejandro old chum

Yearbooks are nostalgia, which is the subject of my talk today. Remember those childhood days of Spanish I with all those clods like Manning. Those singing Fridays in Spanish III, Madrid, Me Gustan Todos. Old Colledge days are carefree days gone by
To thee we sing with our glasses raised on high
Lets drink a toast, were each of us belongs
Ivy covered professors and Ivy covered halls
Hearts full of youth
Hearts full of truth
Six parts Gin to
One part Vemouth, Arnesto



Dear Alex,
I never quite know what to say to really good friends. It's been marvelous getting to know you this year. I would have fallen asleep many times in Spanish if it weren't for you.
I hope to see you this summer.
Love and Luck always.
